Crude Supertanker Struck Off UAE Coast; Attack Zone Widens

- UKMTO said a vessel was struck by an unknown projectile 13 nautical miles west of Al Jazeera, UAE, on Friday; a fire broke out and has since been extinguished. — Reuters
- Shipping and security sources identified the vessel as the Panama-flagged crude supertanker GEM NO.2, fully laden with oil and at anchor off the UAE coast Friday; no group has claimed responsibility. — Reuters
- Reuters notes the strike happened outside the Hormuz area, signalling widening risk for shipping — earlier this week a tanker was struck off Qatar's coast inside the Gulf. — Reuters

Riyadh Airport Fallout: Three Dead Named, Flights Cancelled, Sanaa Hit Overnight

- Saudi authorities confirmed Friday that Thursday's Houthi attacks on Riyadh's airports killed three Saudi nationals and injured several; a Saudia Airlines aircraft was damaged on the ground. — Reuters
- Saudi airstrikes hit Houthi targets in Sanaa overnight, and the Saudi-led coalition says it destroyed three Houthi missile launch platforms; Riyadh airport traffic has returned to normal, officials say. — Reuters
- The Houthi spokesman said the airport was struck by a ballistic missile plus two cruise missiles; the coalition says it intercepted two ballistic missiles, and debris fell on a kindergarten and medical-clinic complex. — Wall Street Journal
- Houthi leader Abdul Malik al-Houthi warned in a televised speech that the strikes "have not stopped"; his forces have encircled Taiz and are defending the Red Sea coast against a Saudi-backed offensive. — Wall Street Journal

IEA Releases Accelerate; Oil Eases on Trump No-Attack Remarks

- Italy has fully met its March IEA commitment of ten million barrels and is open to providing more once other European countries meet their pledges. — Reuters
- The IEA agreed Wednesday to accelerate planned releases and prioritize diesel, and France announced a ten-million-barrel diesel release Wednesday. — Reuters
- Oil fell Friday as Trump's no-attack remarks eased supply fears — Brent down 0.7% to $103.53 a barrel, WTI down 0.6% to $90.97 in intraday trading, per Reuters. — Reuters
