Trump says Iran will 'give up'; US open to sanctions relief only for nuclear progress

- President Trump said Tuesday he does not know if Iran is going to "give up yet" but insisted "they'll give up," adding that Iran is "doing very poorly" in its war with the US. — Reuters
- A US official told CNN that Trump is willing to give Iran sanctions relief and release frozen funds, but only in exchange for "concrete progress" on the nuclear issue; the US is having "positive and constructive discussions through the mediators." — CNN
- The official said special envoy Steve Witkoff, Jared Kushner, Vice President JD Vance and Secretary of State Marco Rubio are leading the US side, and that Iran has signalled flexibility on nuclear issues — but the sides disagree on the timing of commitments. — CNN
- Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi, departing New York on Tuesday, denied any shift in Tehran's position: "there has been no change whatsoever in Iran's positions"; he said he met a Qatari mediator who would carry ideas to the US. — CNN

US grants one-month sanctions waiver for Iran–Iraq pilgrim flights to Najaf

- The Trump administration was set to grant a limited Treasury sanctions waiver on Monday allowing Iraqi Airways to fly Shi'ite pilgrim flights between Iran and the holy city of Najaf for one month, with a more permanent waiver potentially following. — Reuters
- Iraq halted flights to and from Iran on Friday under US sanctions pressure; an Iraqi official said the government was in talks with Washington about the Najaf exemption and expected flights to resume within 48 hours. — Reuters
- The waiver aims to ease pressure on Iraqi Prime Minister Ali al-Zaidi's government, which balances ties with Washington and Tehran; Zaidi offered safeguards including rigorous screening and assurances the flights would not move weapons, sanctioned individuals or illicit money. — Reuters

QatarEnergy extends LNG force majeure; Edison gets no cargoes until December

- QatarEnergy extended its LNG force majeure notices on Monday: Italian utility Edison will not receive Qatari LNG cargoes until early December, with six more shipments cancelled for a total of 35 undelivered cargoes under the April force-majeure declaration. — Reuters
- Qatari force-majeure notices to Asian clients, including buyers in Bangladesh and Pakistan, were extended until November, trading sources said; QatarEnergy did not immediately comment. — Reuters
- Qatar's LNG exports have been slashed about 96% through August by the Hormuz closure — just 18 cargoes shipped versus 509 in the same period last year, per ICIS data — tightening global supply just as Europe's winter heating season begins. — Reuters

Markets

- Brent traded at $96.01 a barrel on September 29, the day's closing market reading, as Middle East supply concerns persisted. — Reuters
- WTI traded at $89.23 a barrel on September 29, the day's closing market reading, as Middle East supply concerns persisted. — Reuters
- The US average diesel price fell to $6.382 a gallon for the week ending September 28, EIA data showed, down from $6.529 the prior week as states and the White House moved to curb fuel prices. — Reuters
- UK NBP day-ahead natural gas stood at 182.776 pence per therm on September 28, per EEX's assessment, with European prices at their highest in three years as winter heating season begins. — Reuters

Shipping

- About 7.4 million barrels a day of crude flowed through the Strait of Hormuz in September, preliminary Kpler data showed — the highest monthly figure since the US-Israeli war began in February — as Saudi Arabia diverted exports from Yanbu after the East-West pipeline restart; figures exclude vessels with transponders off. — Reuters
