U.S. feedback on seven-day trust-building plan reaches Tehran via Qatari mediators

- Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi received Washington's feedback on the seven-day trust-building plan via Qatari mediators in Doha on Tuesday, Sept 29; he is expected to discuss the U.S. response in Tehran on Wednesday, Sept 30. — Reuters
- A briefed official told Reuters the document outlines trust-building steps toward an enhanced version of the June memorandum of understanding, including concrete nuclear steps — with sequencing, not the components, as the main sticking point. — Reuters
- Qatar's foreign ministry spokesman Majed al-Ansari said Wednesday that Doha is "exchanging messages between the parties" to establish common ground between Washington and Tehran. — Reuters

Markets

- Brent's December contract traded near $97.10/bbl on Sept 30 as President Trump denied he would ease sanctions on Iran. — Reuters
- WTI held near $90.12/bbl on Sept 30, keeping the war premium in crude elevated. — Reuters

Shipping

- About 13.1 million barrels a day of crude and petroleum products moved through the Strait of Hormuz in the week ending Sept 27, Kpler data showed — just under 80% of the 17.1 million bpd pre-war level. — CNN
